

Christa Hartz is the Head of Learning & Development at DeAngelis Diamond, a nationally recognized construction management firm consistently named among the best places to work and known for its award-winning, people-first culture. She leads the strategy and execution of initiatives that strengthen leadership capability, employee engagement, and organizational effectiveness across the organization.

With more than a decade of experience in Human Resources and Talent Development, Christa partners with leaders to build high-performing teams grounded in accountability and trust. She helps embed core values into daily operations—from onboarding and team development to leadership programming and performance systems—ensuring culture is not just a statement, but a standard.

Certified in Leadership Coaching for Organizational Wellbeing, Christa holds a Master's in Adult Learning and Human Resource Development from Florida International University and a Bachelor's in Business Management and HR from Florida Gulf Coast University. She believes culture is a strategic advantage—especially in Southwest Florida, where community and business intersect so closely.
